SOTM 2010 Board meeting and AGM

As per previous discussion, to ensure continuity (and conformance with our articles), the board is proposing to only put up 1/3 (two positions) for voting. However, to make sure we have member consensus, Mike will email the OSMF talk to get feedback. We will then meet again 10th June (to be able to give 21 days clear formal notice) to finalise and formally call AGM.

Henk has arranged a venue for the AGM Sunday lunchtime, 13:30.

It was suggested that we meet Thursday before SOTM and organise it around Steven King, however not all board members may be available, Mike to follow up via email. Simone and Richard Weait have a suite near the SOTM venue which could provide a board meeting point.

Working Group Reports:

- License / Legal - Mike

  - License change. All base documentation is complete and the LWG is now firmly engaged in informational exercises and implementation only.

New contributor terms setup completed and went live May 12th. All new registrants now agree to license both under CC-BY-SA and ODbL. Our thanks to Matt Amos, Grant Slater and Tom Hughes for the technical set-up and Henk Hoff for organizing French and Italian versions as required by their respective national laws.

We are now working on implementing voluntary re-licensing for existing contributors (Accept or Decline). We will complete review of our time framework next week. The draft is to get voluntary re-licensing going within June and then allow 5 weeks to review the number who respond. If it is large, we will proceed to mandatory Accept/Decline. If it is small, we will continue informational efforts and extend for 5 weeks. During all these phases, end users will still use CC-BY-SA for the current version of the database. The timing of the final stage, cutting from over from CC-BY-SA to ODbL, we intend to leave as open as possible, to allow a community consensus to be formed that we are indeed ready to move, a critical mass of acceptances to have been received, large importers to be formally informed and consent gained.

- Foundation website license-related, service-related pages.

The following resources are now complete:

- Microsoft

Jon Gelsey, (http://www.linkedin.com/pub/jon-gelsey/2/41/a56) and Blaise Aguera y Arcas of Microsoft attended our meeting of 18th May and Jon followed up again at our 25th May meeting. The company is interested in being a user of OpenStreetMap data under the new ODbL and wish to do that in a manner that is in keeping with both the letter and spirit of the license. To that end, we discussed a series of "FAQ" questions that were previously presented via legal counsel. It was a good opportunity to discuss philosophy and intent of both parties rather than precise answers. The questions and draft answers can be found in LWG minutes and are intended to be incorporated in the License FAQ on the Foundation website. We will continue to work on some specific issues and have suggested that Microsoft personnel join and engage the general community in our general and legal discussion fora and also consider joining the OSMF.

Of general interest, Miguel ended by outlining what Microsoft are seriously looking at, though emphasised these are by no means firm deliverables. Roughly in chronological order:

1. Using OSM maps in areas of the world where they are better. Use map tiles as is. This would involve setting up a proxy server so that our own servers would not get swamped.

1a. Potentially set up a map app gallery, offering OpenStreetMap as one view ... in the same way we offer more than one map view.

2. Offer OSM map editing in Bing. Edits would go directly, or cached and then sent automatically, to OpenStreetMap. This would include high resolution aerial imagery.

3. Offering maps based on OSM data according to in-house style-sheets.

4. Service integration, yet to be explored thoroughly.

Mikel said we should ask if imagery could be used in other editors. We also need to inform technical team on item one and get response.

- Nike. LWG is tracking the situation, (Nike appears to have used OpenStreetMap-derived data for a London advertising campaign without attribution).

- Richard Weait has joined the LWG

  - Treasurer - Andy

Final accounts for 2009 are complete and signed. They will be sent to Companies House to meet submittal deadline.

- SOTM 2010 - Henk

[Simone joined the meeting]

Insurance/liability. Henk had a discussion with the venue. In summary, if it is something we do (activities initiated by us) or something we brought in (equipment/materails), then we are liable. Else, they (venue) are liable. Andy is looking at one company for insurance http://www.perkins-slade.com/home/ Henk has also found one company that does event insurance, specifically including Spain and will ask for a quote this week.

Current sign-ups: 100 (weekend), 73 (friday) - need to increase
Sponsors: Current: 34.300 euro (2009: 18.300 euro)

- HOT

Nicolas Chavent and Dane
Springmeyer have just returned from a second mission to Haiti, successfully. Third is planned for next month.
We have started communication channels on twitter and blog. Blog not yet fully launched, but will be at http://hot.openstreetmap.org/weblog/
Nicolas is looking into some kind of incorporation for the entity possibly in France and/or USA.

- New OSMF Logo

Mike needs to set current logo set to ?Ian Dees?.

- What is OSMF want to do in their session on SotM?

We have 1 1/2 hours available, normal sessions are 20 minutes.

- Yahoo! satellite

Yahoo has entered into an agreement with Nokia to provide maps to Yahoo, this may affect OpenStreetMap access to their imagery.

- Google StreetView

Also, Simone met Ed Parsons in Rome. He reiterated that third-party licensing prevented tracing from aerial imagery but Simone understands that there is no problem using StreetView imagery. Ed is going to Girona, so we can follow up there.
